Art Unit: 2611

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed. Note MPEP 606.01.

2. The drawings are objected to under 37 CFR 1.83(a). The drawings must show every feature of the invention specified in the claims. Therefore, the features recited in claims 14-16 describing hardware must be shown or the feature(s) canceled from the claim(s). The only device arrangement is shown in Fig. 1 which applicant describes as being prior art. No new matter should be entered.

A proposed drawing correction or corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 14-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The preamble of claim 14 is highly ambiguous. The phrase "... by being inputted outer signal source, ..." seems to indicate that an external source is in view, but it is not clear.

Art Unit: 2611

(Applicant seems to recite "outer" instead of the more common term "external" regarding system component relationships).

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over applicant's admitted prior art.

Applicant's description of the prior art spanning pages 2-6 of the specification covers the system hardware recited in claim 1. The user of the system shown would naturally figure out the state of speaker connections rather easily by listening to or observing specific connectivity of the speakers at the point of connection to the A/V system. As applicant describes, the menus are received with the A/V programs based on the selected source 1-4. Upon recognition of the source selected and the speakers connected, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that some of the menus cannot be usable based on the source and speaker connectivity, although it may not be convenient or immediately carried out, thereby meeting claim 1.

Art Unit: 2611

The features recited in the dependent claims are also accounted for by applicant in the prior art description (i.e. input sources, output terminals, user manipulation, and service types)

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for a patent published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for a patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for the purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United states and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 14 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Jordan et al.

The system of Jordan (noting particularly Figs. 1, 2, 2A, 22 and 24) includes displaying video on a monitor (display 130, 140 in Fig. 1) of a digital television system (e.g. claim 7), wherein external audio may be connected by way of external speakers or amplifiers (col. 6 lines 59-63), and wherein audio menus are used which can specify audio connections and related preference settings (col. 12 lines 43-45; Figs. 22, 24), the overall system requiring control according to CPU 105.

6. Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jordan et al.

Jordan points out that external speakers and amplifiers can be connected to and selected as user preferences, as pointed out above. Although he does not specify to what the external amplifier is connected, one of ordinary skill in the art would have logically considered the external amplifier to be connected to the television monitor since the audio source is from a broadcast A/V program initially received by the television, to which the external speakers and amplifiers are connected and selected by the user.

7. Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jordan et al. in view of Waldron or Brown.

It would have been obvious to use female connectors for enabling ready connectivity and disconnectivity of the sound reproducing devices, in effect performing switching (i.e. indicating "on/off" conditions), as taught by Brown (Fig. 2) or Waldron (Fig. 2).
